

New UAE Visa Rules You Should Know

Visa regulations for the UAE are evolving every day to help everyone from tourists to workers or those looking for long-term residence come and live in this dynamic country easier than before. This article goes through some examples of periodic updates made by the UAE's visa system, which is being continually streamlined.

1. Multiple Entry Tourist Visas

Now available are the multiple-entry tourist visa options that provide those travelling on a tourist visa the ability to enter and exit the UAE multiple times without needing to apply for a new visa each time. This is especially beneficial for those travelling frequently and those travelling for business purposes.

2. Longer Stay Tourist Visas

Tourist visa holders can now stay longer (up to 60 days as opposed to the standard 30). This provides tourists with greater flexibility in exploring the U.A.E. or spending more time with family and friends.

3. Job Seeker Visa

A new job seeker visa allows seekers into the UAE to find employment without needing a sponsor. This will help many skilled professionals look for employment.

4. Golden Visa Expansion

The Golden Visa programme has expanded to include additional groups of people such as professionals, freelance workers, investors and uniquely gifted young students. This long-term residence visa lasts 5 or 10 years and does not require a local sponsor.

5. Green Visa

This new visa is also for self-employed people, freelancers and skilled employees. The green visa gives the holder a lot of independence. Unlike the sponsoring companies usually used by holders of work visas, the green visa holder can be employed by more than one company. There is also a much longer grace period after the expiry of the visa.

6. Easier Family Sponsorship

Family members can be sponsored by UAE residents more simply than was previously possible because of relaxed rules for bringing spouses, children, and parents to live with them in the UAE.

7. Grace Period After Visa Expiry

There is now an extended grace period after canceling or expiring a visa. With this extension of the grace period, residents now have more time to search for a job, change their visa status, or leave the UAE without incurring penalties after their visa has been canceled or has expired.

8. Simplified Entry Requirements

Opportunities to apply for visas have become easier due to the UAE's simplification of many visa procedures by streamlining application processes through online applications and electronic services.

Conclusion

New visa regulations in the UAE aim to bring in talent, boost tourism and enhance the economy. With more flexible visa options, longer stays and an easier application process, the UAE has become even easier to access for tourists and residents alike.

Before submitting an application for a visa, please check for up-to-date information at official sources, as rules may regularly change.
